Since May 2022, I have been self-employed as a Realtor.

From 1981 until my retirement from the practice of law in 2020, I held various positions as a labor attorney within private, state, and federal agencies and served as a labor arbitrator resolving labor disputes between management and unions for many years. During the majority of my career, I served predominantly as a civil litigation attorney. Additionally, I held the distinguished role of Chair of the Metropolitan Washington Airports Authority, overseeing the labor relations for the Airport's employees.

In these roles, I have consistently demonstrated my ability to review and analyze applicable laws, regulations, and rules, applying them effectively to resolve the issues presented. I chose to reside in Deltona because I recognize it as a dynamic and diverse community with immense potential. Since becoming a resident, I have actively engaged with city services, participated in community events, and closely followed the city's development.
